The Beauty of Fetish - Vicki Goldberg 1998

Fashion's interest in fetishistic items, like stiletto high heels and tight corsets, has fluctuated with the times. Pushed-up breasts were popular in the 18th century, and wasp waists in the 19th. Early in this century fetish garments tended to be soft and clinging, whereas in the seventies and eighties punk rockers put on chains and dog collars, and Madonna introduced underwear as outerwear. Steve Diet Goedde's photographs symbolize an era that has eagerly embraced fetish garments as both high and low fashion. In his images we find a private, magical world filled with anticipation. His exploration of fetish is more than mere disembodied fragments -- a feeling of intimacy and pleasure pervades his work. Unlike many fetish photographers, Goedde steps away from the contrived manipulation of the object or model in order to capture a simple grace and beauty in his photographs.

Naked Steel - Günter Blum 1999

Gunter Blum loved powerful women. Women who like a challenge. And women who like to challenge. In spite of Impossible odds, the lithe, improbably perfect bodies of his subjects seem to hold their own whether pitted against the vast chains, the gigantic cogs of brutal machines, or the inorganic symbols of the alien but strangely familiar environments in which these strong women play out their defiant fantasies.

Rafael Moneo - Rafael Moneo 2010-09-07

Rafael Moneo is a courageous architect, one who for decades has defined his own style of architecture. With a sensitivity to materials and context unmatched by any living architect, Moneo has created a series of important works, including the Audrey Jones Beck Building at the Museum of Fine Arts in Houston, Our Lady of the Angels Cathedral in Los Angeles, and, perhaps most notably, the extension to the Prado Museum in Madrid. A teacher and critic, Moneo now turns his analytical eye to his own work. Twenty-one carefully selected projects are presented in detail, from the initial idea and through construction to the completed work and illustrated by a spectacular suite of new color images by architectural photographer Michael Moran. These are combined with Moneo's own drawings as well as informal documentary material from the design of each of the projects.
